Nowadays, more and more people desire to observe the substantial beauty of art, nature, science, etc, therefore they attend museums and galleries. Location, popularity, even ratings play an important role in ~~want~~ people attending "houses of knowledge". In this report I'd like to draw on such theme as attendance of museums and galleries and show you the data I've collected for five years to discuss the respective amounts of ways museums can increase people's attendance.

To summarise, national museums and art galleries experienced increase of guest compared to science museums. Let's compare the British Museum that had the flow of attendants over 5 years total (plus 3 mln guests) to the Science Museum, which hadn't been so appealing to customers (minus 2.2 mln guests).

On the contrary, the Natural History Museum had redeemed itself - from 2013 to 2015 there was a decrease in total 2.1 mln attendants, but 0.3 mln people decided to revisit the house of history.

Personal galleries had a hard time gaining guests - where National Gallery obtained 2.1 mln customers, over 5 years, the Tate Gallery got plus 1.3 visitors over the same amount of time.

As a potential customer myself, I'd like to ~~recomm~~ recommend all museums to include modern art and researches, since those appeal to younger generations. Another great step would be ~~advertisement~~ advertising the companies, as lots of those suffer from ~~poor~~ poor advertisements.

There are lots of reasons for people to observe art and science, and we should give them more of those!
